"Uncle Dan"

"Uncle Dan" will be the attraction at the Norway Opera House, Oct. 13. The story is one of love, pathos and devotion, skillfully intermingled, yet as serious and sublime as any Illumina may be the play contains many humorous bits of comedy, contributed by the quaint characters of sturdy New England, the local of the picture. The complete production is carried, the scenery being handsome and striking in appearance, making a beautiful frame for the author's painting. Killed by Falling Tree at Jay.

Frank P. Stones' brother, Ex-Senator George W. Stone was killed by the falling of a tree, Sunday. Mr. Stone with some of his neighbors took up a "Bee" race, using smoke. Sunday morning owing to the high wind, he became worried fearing some fire might remain in the ashes. Taking a pail and force pump he started for the place. He followed the wood road for a distance, when it would seem that suddenly a maple about eight inches through, blown down by the violent wind struck him with such force as to break his skull and cause instant death. As he was about six feet outside the road, he may have jumped to try to avoid the tree. Some calculations. His sister, Abbie Stone becoming alarmed at his long absence went down to the woods to find him, when to her horror she came across his body. Help was summoned but the doctor said that the blow so near the temple must have caused instant death.

Mr. Stone was born in Jan. 7, 1849, and was one of a family of eight children, of whom four survive. Dr. Moses Stone of Wellsley, Mass.; Frank P. Stone of New Norway; Mrs. Etta Hascall of New Haven, Conn.; and Abbie, who resided with her brother.

DOING THEIR DUTY

Scores of Norway Readers are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys.

To filter the blood is the kidneys' duty. When they fail to do this the kidneys are sick.

Backache and many kidney ills follow.

Urinary trouble, diabetes, Doan's Kidney Pills cure them all.

Norway people endorse our claim.

S. C. Roster, Main St., Norway, Me., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and am able to speak highly in their favor. Several years ago my kidneys began to trouble me and learning of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box. It was not long after commencing their use that I felt much better. I was free from kidney trouble until recently, when a cold brought on another attack. (I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Stone's Drug Store and after taking a few doses, I was relieved of every symptom of the trouble. Whenever I have taken this remedy since then, it has never failed to help me and I, therefore, speak highly in its favor when an opportunity occurs." 40-41

Maine reports the canning of 30,000,000 cans of corn from 14,000 acres planted from which farmers realize $1,500,000 this season. The main corn crop can be profitably increased, for there is a large and growing demand for Maine's sweet corn, which has a better flavor than corn raised anywhere South or West.

Be a Booster.

Do you know there's lots of people, Sentin' round in every town, Growin' like a rosy chicken, Knockin' every good thing down?

Don't you be a kind o' cattle, Don't you hold 'em up to see, You just be a booster rooster, Grow and boost for all you see.

If your town needs boostin', boost 'em. Don't hold 'em up to see, If some other fellow's willin'— No one's got a mortgage on it, It's just yours as much as his, If your town is any on boosters, You get in the boostin' biz.

If things don't just seem to suit you, What's the matter with a boostin'?

Just to help the thing along? 'Cause if things should stop again? We'd be in a sorry plight.

You just keep that horn a blowin' Boostin' it up with all your might.

If you know some fellow's tailin', Just forget 'em, 'cause you know, Them same fellows got some good points, Them's the ones you want to know:

"Cast your loaves out on the waters, 'Cause if things should stop again, Maybe they will come back 'buffered,' When some fellow boosts for you."

Dear Hunting.
Deer have become so common in the Maine forests, and around the settlements that they have become a nuisance to the farmers by destroying growing crops at a time when it is unlawful to shoot them. Hunters are allowed to shoot two deer apiece, and there are few men who go into the woods that do not secure their full quota.

Their tracks in the forest and even along the highways are so numerous as almost to make one think that a flock of sheep are running wild. But it is a fact that one can go through the woods for days without seeing one.

It must not be thought, however, that the deer do not see a hunter. They recognize his presence in the woods by a thousand ways, and they steal away so silently and keep themselves concealed so skillfully, that it requires some of the best arts of the hunter to get a shot. Of course this adds to the zest of the chase.

Still hunting with a careful observation of the direction of the wind, is the most usual way of coming up with a deer and getting a chance to land him. The protection which the law has thrown around the deer herds of Maine prohibits the hunter from using a jack light by night, and the use of dogs for trailing. The hunter must approach his quarry in a sportsmanlike manner which gives the deer a chance to measure his wits with those of the hunter.

The old jacklight method was the most picturesque of any, but it does not give the deer a fair show. An iron jack with the light concealed was placed in the bow of the canoe. The hunter with his rifle took his place directly behind it, and the guide with his paddle directed the canoe over the waters of a lake in the deer country, keeping near the shore where the deer came down to drink.

When a cracking of the brush or a splashing of the water indicated the presence of the game, the canoe was turned toward it, and the hunter opened the jack and allowed the light to stream out over the water. The light fascinated the deer. He fixed his eyes upon the light, and slowly, step by step, approached it. His eyes, glowing in the darkness like two balls of fire, offered a fair mark for the hunter, and a bullet planted squarely between them, dropped the quarry in instant death.

A wounded and bleeding deer is one of the saddest things of the forest. Hunters who cannot shoot straight and hard and shoot to kill have no right to go into the woods after deer. I remember once following a trail along the shore of Cuscutta lake in the Bangley region and coming upon smooches of blood in the snow, where a wounded deer had dragged himself across it into the forest. It was a pathetic sight, and a lesson to shoot to kill, or not at all.—[Sunday Times.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the cause of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The foliage on the trees in the village and the neighboring mountains has been exceedingly beautiful, this fall. Which ever way one turned there was a scene of beauty almost indescribable. But the rain and fierce wind of Saturday destroyed most of it, stripping many trees almost entirely bare and from others, sweeping down the ripest and most beautiful leaves.

Saturday, Oct. 1st, we were favored with several thunder showers, the first at 11 a. m. was quite heavy, with a fierce wind, and heavy rain, giving the fruit and shade trees a hard shaking. One shade tree in the park, on Park st. was broken down. The second shower was about 1 p. m. and not very heavy. At about 3 p. m. there was a heavy roll of thunder, and the rain which seemed continuous for about 20 minutes. The clouds were black and threatening, rolling and tumbling before a fierce wind which seemed cyclonic, but it was all far enough away to make a grand display without really reaching us, but what was grand to us must have been terrifying to some people who were in the midst of the full force of the tornado. About 5 p. m. there came another shower, a light one without this was an unusual experience, at this season of the year we are looking for snow squalls instead of thunder storms.

The Fat Woman's Ring.

The woman showed a fat finger in whose folds of flesh was imbedded a plain gold ring.
"How much will you let me have on this ring?" she said to the pawnbroker.
"I can't tell until you take it off so I can weigh it," he said.
She tugged at the ring. It wouldn't come off.
"Can't you get it off for me?" she asked.

The pawnbroker threaded a needle with strong linen thread, soaked the needle and slipped it head first under the ring toward the hand. Then he wound the long end of the thread tightly and evenly around the finger almost to the nail. "Try now," he said.
The woman pulled and tugged at the needle and unwound the thread from the base of the finger out, and as he unwound the ring slipped off. He weighed the ring.
"Two dollars," he said.
"That won't do me any good," said the woman. "I can get $3 any place else."

He returned the ring.
"She didn't really want to pawn it," he said. "She just wanted somebody to take the ring off. A jeweler would have done it the same way, but would have charged something."

Better Stick to the Old Business.

A colored man was brought before a police judge charged with stealing chickens. He pleaded guilty and received sentence, when the judge asked how it was managed to lift those chickens right under the window of the owner's house when there was a dog loose in the yard.

"Hit wouldn't be no use, judge," said the man, "to try to 'splain dis thing to yo' all. Ef you was to try it you like as here, and about 3 p. m. there was a heavy roll of thunder, and the rain which seemed continuous for about 20 minutes. The clouds were black and threatening, rolling and tumbling before a fierce wind which seemed cyclonic, but it was all far enough away to make a grand display without really reaching us, but what was grand to us must have been terrifying to some people who were in the midst of the full force of the tornado. About 5 p. m. there came another shower, a light one without this was an unusual experience, at this season of the year we are looking for snow squalls instead of thunder storms."

About Handkerchiefs.
There is no better way for a girl to learn to sew neatly than to make for herself a lot of dainty handkerchiefs, and as a yard of sheer linen is enough for a number of them, it is much cheaper to make them at home, and there is nothing finer for these small articles than a fine linen lawn or India linen, and a close quality. When hemstitching, only three threads should be drawn as it gives a much neater effect, and to make the threads easier to draw, dampen and press the material before beginning the work. It is a feature of economy to get a width of linen, and to use two handkerchiefs, and the wise girl makes her own pretty handkerchiefs.

Billy Spots has made arrangements to keep "Pete" the small lady deer this winter, and is worrying for fear somebody will shoot her. After a council of sportsmen, warden, guides and camp owners, it was decided that to be sure of saving this pet of Pleasant Island, some distinguishing mark or marks must be provided for "Pete," and it was finally decided to put a bell on her and provide her with a red blanket and paint in glaring white letters upon said blanket these words: "Don't Shoot! This is a Lame Deer." It is hoped that the bell and the letters will save Baby "Pete" from over anxious hunters. It would be a shame to lose "Pete."

The weather in the early morning was not the best, however, it soon cleared away and was not too bad even if a bit too warm for fur overcoats. The attendance was an average. It was thrilled with overhanging branches of autumn leaves.

We did not attend the Fair last year and we noticed several improvements on the grounds. A change in the hall gives more room. There were three Grange exhibits in hall, Mountain View Grange, East Conway, Eagle Grange North Chatham and Fryeburg Grange. It's a good exhibit and shows lots of work.

Beryl A. Briggs.

Beryl A. daughter of Frank S. and Irene Briggs died in Portland, Sept. 30 after a sick's severe illness. Little Beryl was six years old the day of her death. She was a bright beautiful child of unusually lovely disposition whose going out leaves the sorrowing parents broken hearted.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.

Norway Wins Case.
The law court handed down a verdict in the Oxford county case of the inhabitants of Albany vs. inhabitants of Norway, giving judgment for defendants.
The verdict, which was drawn by Associate Justice Arno W. King of Bethel, was as follows:
Under the provisions of R. S. c. 24, Sec. 1, cl. II, a legitimate unemancipated minor child, whose father has no pauper settlement in this state, takes the settlement which its mother has within it. If the mother's settlement changes during the child's minority then the settlement of the child will change likewise and be the same as that of the mother.
In the case at bar the parents of the minor pauper were divorced. At the time of the divorce neither parent had a pauper settlement in this state. The father did not subsequently acquire one. After the divorce the mother acquired a pauper settlement in the defendant town by a second marriage. Still later the mother acquired a settlement in the plaintiff town by reason of a third marriage.
That the settlement of the minor pauper was in the plaintiff town, the same as that of her mother.
Judgment for defendants.

Norway Millinery Opening.

Friday and Saturday.
The millinery openings at Mrs. G. A. Allen's and Mrs. R. L. Powers' were Friday and Saturday.
The leading colors are black, purple, bronze, mahogany, corbeau blue, royal, Copenhagen, cadet, amide, taupe, fog, gray, sable (sand color) and browns.
In dress hats the prevailing trim is of a turned down, yet wavy nature, coming to an inverted V over the face. The large shapes are an inch or two wider in brim than they were last season.
Pompoms of the military and cockade shapes are good. Pompoms of coque, casowary, hackle and nazaire.
Ornaments are used more liberally than of late.

Materials used in making pressed shapes are beaver, with long and short nap, lustrous material, felt, and combinations of any of them.
Particularly simple is the design of many smart turbans which have the huge crown that settle far down over the hair and the big rosette so fashionable just now.

Various modifications and exaggerations of the turban shape threaten popularity for the coming season. Covered with velvet or with silk or satin, which swatches them in innumerable folds.

These changes on the Charlotte Corday or cloche hat are rung in many colors and many materials. One is plainly covered with black velvet; the full crown is gathered into a folded girdle of the velvet, and on each side of the front are two huge rosettes, composed of many yards of frost-like white lace. The effect of this is very striking, but very becoming.

Another turban is covered with gray taffeta silk shirred over cords and the big rosette is made of satin of a darker gray tone, gray colorings being particularly chic just now according to the Paris notion.

More colors are: rose, maize, sky blue, raspberry, night blue, elephant gray, a soft old rose, lovely ether blue, many green shades, silver and smoke grays, prunella, (soft purple) Tasmanian apple green, a soft, deep, dull cinnamon hue, pagon and gendarme, two of the good blues.

Colors? Oh, well, black and white count, too.

Both Mrs. Powers and Mrs. Allen's windows are in black and white and contain some tasteful specimens of millinery art.

Mrs. Powers has as helpers and trimmers, M. E. Adams, Mrs. Edith Witham and Jessie Tolman. They show 72 trimmed hats.

Mrs. Allen has E. C. McKillop, who has been the head trimmer for six seasons, Mrs. Wallace Allen and Clara Gammon. They have 100 trimmed hats. The hats are high. The smaller hats the brims droop, but the larger ones are obliged to roll on one side or they would completely hide the features of the wearer. Hindu turbans, in fact all Hindu drapings are affected. Then there are great worn and cords and tassels like military fashions, and Persian, tapestry and Paisley weaves.

A large number of black and black and white hats are shown. A hood turban in three shades of geranium red velvet, and poppies. A draped black velvet and satin toque. A hood turban with a white lily made of ribbon with black aigrette center, and jet band. A large black velvet hat with black lace facing over white satin, and trimmed with white marabout and fancy black feather. A large black velvet hat with gold facing, ostrich feathers and gold tassels.

A military turban, black with white plush, fitted top, black and white wing, and military cord and tassels. A large black hat with white plush top, fancy yellow feather and gold band. A plush hat in green and gold with fancy white feather.

A mushroom shape, the top of draped Dresden silk, brown velvet facing, wings two shades of brown, a shirred brown velvet covered cord. Large Dresden ribbon bows in brown accents cover the crown. Alice blue facing with same shade of blue bow in back under the brim. A draped turban of velvet and satin ribbon in the raisin shades. A skating cap of beaver in gray and blue mixture, with many blue velvet trimmings and tassels on the point of the crown that falls to one side. A black velvet hat with old rose bow, faced with white maline and the brim edged with white lace, white fancy feather.

A Gage hat, the brim high and perfectly plain, draped crown of silk and a big wide, flat bow in the back. A child's red mushroom felt hat, facings of shirred velvet, shirred band and wreath of small ribbon roses, bow. A large black hat of the new Bengaline silk, draped crown, large black wing. A white brocade satin, veiled with black chiffon, horn crown, bow in back plush facing toward the front, black velvet trimming.

Child's fitted velvet hat, faced with rose shirred ribbon and a rosette wheel of the shirred rose ribbon. Castor and blue beaver fancy gascoigne hats, the trimmings at automobile. Bonnet in brown, draped shirred crown and shirred ribbon, ties.

Many hats have the trimmings come from the back. Tapestry is seen in ornaments, in bands and for brims or crowns. Tapestry with bead work gives an Indian touch.

A fancy satin looks much like damask. Fur hats for all ages will be much worn a little later. While the new mushroom shapes are much worn by children the pokes are still in favor. The ornaments are large and there are titles of fancy and feather bands. There are braided quills and ornaments that have a resemblance to pin cushions.

Satin roses are made of ribbon, jute plums, or willowtwigs, feather bands made of little wings standing up, after the Indian fashion. All these and much more may be seen. Should a Hindu veil it this winter he will doubtless think from the head dress that the ladies are his long lost relatives.

Dandruff Means Baldness.

Dandruff is caused by a germ—a vicious, persistent, tenacious germ—that up to the discovery of one of the world's greatest scientists, was supposed to be unkillable. That discovery is called Parisian Sage, and Frank Kimball, the druggist, guarantees it to kill dandruff germs, to remove all traces of dandruff, to stop falling hair or itching scalp in two weeks, or money back.

It contains just enough of sage properly combined with other ingredients to make any woman's or man's hair grow luxuriantly. It makes everybody's hair, whether hair change to soft, lustrous, and beautiful hair. 50 cents a large bottle at Noyes Drug Store, try it.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Galea, Kans.—"A year ago last March I fell, and a few days after there was soreness in my right side. In about a week a bunch came and it bothered me so much at night I could not sleep. It kept growing larger and by fall it was as large as a hen's egg. I could not go to bed without a hot water bottle applied to that side. I had one of the best doctors in Kansas and he told my husband that I would have to be operated on as it was something like a tumor caused by a rupture. I wrote to you for advice and you told me not to get discouraged but to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did take it and soon the lump in my side broke and passed away."—Mrs. R. R. Huxy, 713 Mineral Ave., Galea, Kans.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feelings, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to many suffering women.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

OTISFIELD.

Committed Suicide.

Frank Sawyer, aged 57, a blacksmith, shot himself through the head Saturday afternoon shortly after dinner. He died an hour and 20 minutes later.

It is not known what reason the man had for committing suicide. He is said to have enjoyed his usual good health. Shortly after dinner he left his family and went to another part of the house. Suddenly a shot was heard and his wife, rushing into the room, found her husband, stretched across a bed, a revolver by his side and blood oozing from a hole in his temple. The man used a 44-caliber revolver.

Mr. Sawyer worked all Saturday morning shoeing horses and talked in a cheerful manner with the men who visited the shop during the forenoon. He ate his dinner and went to the shop after returning to the house about 2 o'clock. He went directly to his bedroom on the second floor and a few moments later the report of the revolver was heard.

Mr. Sawyer sent to neighbors, Dr. H. K. Reid, and a coroner, who were accompanied by H. M. Stone of East Otisfield, went immediately to the house. He did not regain consciousness.

The revolver had been placed against the head about half an inch above the right ear, and the bullet passed through the head and out above the same point on the left side. The bullet was found on the bed by Mr. Stone. The revolver with which the man shot himself is of the English bull dog type, one that Mr. Sawyer secured in trade a number of years ago. It was not considered necessary to summon a coroner.

Mr. Sawyer was born in Norway and came to Otisfield about 12 years ago. He had a blacksmith shop here and one at Oxford, spending his time between the two places.

Besides his wife he is survived by a daughter, Maude Sawyer.

A new and novel Bread Book has just been issued by the Passenger Department of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. The cover is an imitation of a bread basket. Inside the "basket" are a number of illustrations picturing the bread winners at work, ploughing, reaping and threshing scenes, and running through the pictures are the wonderful stories of progress and development of that wonderful West now waiting at the touch of the steel fingers of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Thomas Yashow of West Bethel has a contract to get out 6,000,000 feet of lumber for the Berlin Mills Co. at Grafton, N. Casco Grange Fair.
Casco Grange fair was a humming success. Owing to the showers early in the morning the people were slow in getting out, so the ball game did not commence until noon. Score, Raymonds 12, Webb's Mills 3. The ball game in the afternoon resulted in a score of Raymonds 16, South-Casco 14. The poultry show included one pen of ducks and one pen of turkeys, both entered by Mark Leach. Cattle were represented by two yoke of oxen. The horse pulling was good. L. P. Fickett started the contest. His horses were well shod and pulled well. Fred Tenney pulled with his horses. Although they were smooth and slipped badly, they hauled the load some distance. John Pollard with his heavy black horses went about the same distance. The contest lasted three minutes. The visitor's attention in the hall was caught by an enormous pumpkin raised by Fred Lombard. It weighed 57 pounds. An enormous squash was raised by John Jackson, which would probably weigh 60 pounds. Some good cauliflower were shown by Clinton Nutting. Walter Butler had some nice onions. He's said to have raised 500 bushels of corn on an acre. Mark Leach had a nice display of fruit and there were quite a number of fancy articles. Dinner was served to about 300 people.

Good Way to Use Hyomei for Catarrh.
Besides breathing through the inhaler a few times a day, many catarrh sufferers write that they find inhaling HYOMEI (pronounce it High-o-mei) from a bowl of steaming water each night before retiring is a great aid in curing stubborn cases. Try it; it's very simple; gives quick relief and makes you breathe easier. Fill a bowl half full of boiling water; pour into the water a teaspoonful of HYOMEI, cover head and bowl with a towel and breathe through nose and mouth the pleasant, medicated, antiseptic and healing vapor that arises. This method relieves that stiffness at once, and makes your head feel fine. You can get a bottle of HYOMEI at drug stores everywhere or at Noyes Drug Store for only 50 cents. Ask for extra bottle of HYOMEI inhalant. But bear in mind that a HYOMEI outfit which includes inhaler and bottle of HYOMEI costs $1.00. But, as stated before, if you already own an inhaler, a bottle of HYOMEI costs but 50 cents. HYOMEI is guaranteed by Frank Kimball, proprietor of the Noyes Drug Store, and druggists everywhere to cure catarrh, sore throat, coughs, croup, asthma and croup, or money back. Try it on that generous basis. Stomach dosing never cured catarrh and never will. HYOMEI directly reaches the inflamed membrane, kills the germs and soothes and heals the inflammation. Write for free trial bottle of HYOMEI to Booth's Hyomei Co., Buffalo, N. Y. 40-42.

Lynchings and Crops.
East Clarinton, Ohio, Sept. 13, 1910. Editor ADVERTISER:—About the first of July a tragedy was enacted at Newark, Ohio, in which two lives were lost. A tragedy so startling and peculiar that it was published and commented on by the press all over the country. Under the new local option law, Licking county, in which Newark is situated, voted dry, but the city of Newark went wet, and elected a full city set of officers in full sympathy with the saloon element. The law and order league tried to enforce the law, but some of its members were mobbed and driven from the city, and many of the leading citizens were told to get out or they would be served the same way. It was then that a call was sent to the state Anti-Saloon society for 10, 15, and 25 dry detectives were sent to the city, who raided two of the leading saloons. But they ran into a hornet's nest, and were soon surrounded by a howling mob, some eight of the detectives were arrested by the police and locked up. Etherington, the mayor, did his best to get away. With the mob, at his heels he ran for nearly a mile hoping to board an electric car bound for Columbus, but he found another mob there. He jumped upon a passing automobile but was pushed off, and it was the last he saw of him. Covered with blood and almost frantic with excitement that he fired the fatal shot that mortally wounded Brown, the big ex-chief of police, who afterwards admitted that he struck Etherington.

Etherington was arrested by the police and locked up in one of the strongest jails in the country and could have been easily protected if an earnest effort had been made to do so. Newark is a city of about 30,000 population and is a great railroad center. At the time of lynching a railroad strike was on, and thousands of idle men were walking on the streets. Etherington, as he stood beneath the fatal telegraph pole with the rope around his neck, asked to be allowed to address the crowd. The reply was a fierce plow hammer in the hand of one of the ring-leaders of the mob, and he was no doubt dead when strung up. Newark is the home city of Rev. W. J. Williams, and his father, mother and sister, are living there. Mr. and Mrs. Williams and daughter, Margaret, visited in Newark for nearly a week the first of August, and saw much of interest in the new famous city. The heavy steel rail used as a battering ram to break down the massive iron door, was there. The jail had been repaired and the telephone pole upon which Etherington was hung had been incased in sheet iron to save it from the relic hunters.

The lawless element in the city, at first desperate and threatening, have become panic stricken. They have read the hand writing on the wall and many of the undersizable citizens have fled from the city. Mayor Abertson has gone to Los Angeles for his health, but before leaving announced to his friends that he would be back in time to run again for Mayor at the next city election. As a sequel to the lynching, the Licking county grand jury have indicted 58 members of the mob, 25 of them for first degree murder. A very few have not been hunted out of their holes yet, but all until the trial, and without doubt many of them will soon be found. With free board and lodgings behind the bars of the Ohio penitentiary. The law of Ohio requires that $5,000 shall be paid by the county where the crime is committed for each and every person lynched in the state. The father of Etherington has also sued the ex-sheriff for $40,000 damage, claiming that he did not do his duty in preventing the lynching.

The summer in Ohio has been extremely dry and hot and I have been content to lay in the shade and let the rest of the family do the visiting. They have just returned from the Winona, Ind. Bible Conference, where they spent two weeks, and report a very enjoyable time. This part of Ohio is thickly settled, within five miles of Claridon are five new villages, all busy business centers. Two of them are connected with Cleveland by the electric cars and growing, thriving towns.

Geauga county is but twenty miles square, yet it is one of the wealthiest agricultural counties of the state. The name is Indian and means Racoon. It was first settled by Connecticut yankees in 1793 and claims more pure blood blue blooded yankees than many a county in New England of its size. Ex President Garfield, whose home was just over the line of Lake county, in a speech at Burton delivered in 1878 said, "On the Western Reserve are townships more thoroughly New England in character and spirit than most of the towns of New England are today. Cut off from the metropolitan life that has been moulding and changing the spirit here in the wilderness, those characteristics of New England as they left it in the beginning of the century. This has given to the Western Reserve those strongly marked qualities which have always distinguished them."

Howe's History of Ohio says that "The peculiar industry of Geauga county is the making of maple sugar. 45 counties in the state make maple sugar, but Geauga, one of the smallest, yields nearly a third of the entire product besides a large amount of syrup, but to other counties in the Union equals its production of maple sugar." On almost every farm is to be found a rock or sugar maple orchard, and sugar making time is sweet, busy and money making season for the average Ohio farmer.

About two miles from here on the Painesville and Youngstown railroad there are four large charcoal kilns where large quantities of sugar maple trees are converted into charcoal for which a ready market is found. I understand mostly for medical purposes. Dairying, poultry raising and sugar making are the three leading industries. The Holstein seems to be the favorite dairy cow, and from three to fifteen or twenty are to be found on nearly every farm. In poultry, the leghorn takes the lead. One of the neighbors here aims to raise each spring one thousand leghorn pullets which he keeps for winter supply, and nearly all the corn grown is cut green and bound by a corn binder, then hauled to the silo where a steam threshing outfit with a blowing stacker quickly converts it into the best ensilage, which makes one of the best rations for the dairy cow. The other day I passed by a small barn where a steam threshing machine was being pitched into the machine from the barn door while the swinging stacker was blowing the straw into the barn loft directly over where the men were feeding it into the machine. The farms here as a rule are small, and as the entire country is settled, most of the rural towns have a dense population. The lay of the land is much like that of New England, with the mountains, sandy plains and rocks left over from the glacial period. The soil, however, is much better than that of Maine, but far behind that of the free states, and fertilizers in large quantities have to be used in order to raise good crops. From here to Lake Erie it is less than twenty miles. At the time Perry won his great victory on the lake, the cannonade was plainly heard here, although it was several days before the news of the victory reached here. Arrangements are already under way for the celebration of the historic fight in Put-In-Bay, in September, 1913.

The political pot in Ohio is beginning to boil and before election time will be at the red hot stage. Gov. Harmon will make the fight of his life to win, for it he can carry Ohio this fall he will be the logical candidate two years hence on the Democratic ticket. Gov. Harmon was elected two years ago by the "wet Republicans" who did not like the temperance principals of Gov. Harris. The same thing happened four years ago, when Gov. Easton, a Democratic with temperance principals, was elected by the dry Republicans. This year the Republicans have nominated men who are clean and popular and with all the factions apparently well united in a strong Republican state like Ohio, they ought to win.

Hay and small grain has been a fine crop here this year, but corn, potatoes and garden truck, show the effect of the hot, dry summer. In my home section of South Dakota, they have the promise of a bumper corn crop, and have fairly good crops of other kinds. I am glad to learn from letters received, and from the columns of the ADVERTISER, that Maine has harvested an unusual good crop of hay, sweet corn, potatoes and "tourists" this year. I would have liked to have been one of the latter, but hope to help out on next year's crop. Yours truly, JOSEPH ANDREWS.

GREENWOOD.

Burned by Lightning. During the thunder shower of Saturday the barn of G. C. Yates was struck by lightning and burned to the ground in a few moments. The pig was burned and a good wagon in addition to about 12 tons of hay. Mr. Yates' horse was loaned to a neighbor at the time and five cows in the pasture so that the loss was not so heavy as it otherwise might have been.

As an example of the benefits of fire insurance this fire is a good one. Mr. Yates having received a policy only two days previous to the fire. Before that time he had been uninsured. Without the insurance Mr. Yates would have suffered a disastrous loss as he has already had considerable misfortune, this year and the fire would have been the culmination, leaving him in a very bad position.

The Democratic supper and dance. It is the unanimous opinion of all concerned that never, since Cole's hall was built in this place, has it witnessed such a crowd and such a time as it did Friday night of last week. It will be remembered that the affair was the result of a bet, and originally intended to include about six Democrats and an equal number of Republicans, the losing side at the recent election to furnish supper to the winners. On Republican side took their loss good-naturedly and eventually decided to have a bigger celebration. Accordingly they invited every Democrat in town to a supper and dance, every Democrat and wife to have supper free but all Republicans to pay for their supper and all out of town people for attendance, no matter what party they belonged to. The result was a grand good time with everybody happy, good natured and in for all the fun going. Over 40 couples participated in the dance and at least 100 couples sat at tables. Oyster stew of the XXX brand was served to those who enjoy the succulent shell fish, and cake, coffee and ice cream to those who preferred it.

Music furnished by Messrs. F. J. Cole, C. G. French and Mrs. F. C. Maxfield was all that could be desired by the crowd. "Chase the glowing hours with flying feet." A more civil crowd never gathered under one roof and everything went along as smoothly as a placid meadow brook: not a ripple or discord anywhere. If there was a person who went home dissatisfied or unhappy you corresponded failed to find him and if such could be found he would deserve a ducking in the nearest pond. To our Republican friends we extend congratulations upon the successful and happy result of their efforts.

F. W. Waterhouse and family of Bryant Pond was in town, Friday, calling on friends.

As a result of the high wind, Sunday, about one-half of the apple crop is now on the ground.

Glenns and Florence Whitman, reported very ill with whooping cough, are somewhat better.

A. J. Hayes is seriously ill at his home here. A nurse, Flora Cummings, understands, has been engaged to attend him.

Cora Morgan has gone to Walker's Mills to work for Will Swan. Henry Morgan returned to his work at Bryant Pond, Sunday.

J. O. Ring has returned from Oxford, where he has been employed in the corn shop and now is working with his brother, W. F. Ring, cutting ensilage in this vicinity.

Mrs. Sylvester Cole is now on the sick bed, she having been taken ill Saturday. There is an unusually large number of people under the doctor's care in our little community.

Stella Swan entertained several of her friends on the occasion of her 17th birthday, Saturday night. Games were played and refreshments served, and everybody had a nice time. Miss Swan was remembered by numerous gifts.

Two more corn huskings the past week, one at Herbert Ring's, Monday night at which 101 bushels of corn were husked, and one at J. W. Cummings', Wednesday night, when about 150 bushels were husked. About an equal number of people were present on each occasion. We understand that one or two red eyes were in evidence at these occasions but suspect from all reports that they were provided from other sources and not legitimate finds. In any event the possession of said red eyes, either through the workings of a guilty conscience or from sheer cowardice, failed to gather the "apple of war" in the bevy of young ladies present. It is needless to say that on each evening in question a good supply of victuals of just the right sort to appeal to a hungry person was furnished and the havoc wrought at the supper tables amply testified to the quality of the goods.

Summer visitors do not know a good thing when they absent themselves from Maine in weather like this.
